

Hello! My name is Brooklyn Shaw and I am a 19 year old who fell in love with the beautiful game of baseball at the age of four. Throughout my childhood, baseball was a way for me to be a part of something special and make connections with people who had similar interests. Although I would not trade my experiences and friends that I made through the game for anything, there was always the question of whether I was as good as the boys standing beside me. At the age of 12, I went to a Team Sask tryout for an all girls team, travelling to Spruce Grove, Alberta. It was refreshing to see girls just like me out there only wanting to play the sport that they loved and, finally after eight years of competing with the boys, I felt in my own element. From the age of 12 until 18, I competed with the Team Sask girls program travelling all across the country and experiencing the amount of attraction this sport is gaining, from young women, all over the country.
