

FUNDRAISING UPDATE

FlipGive

Our FlipGive campaign has been a huge success! We are just over the $600 mark and there is still over a week to contribute. The last day to purchase through the app is February 8th.

Thank you to everyone for their contributions through the app, it's a great example how a little can go a long way.

Pub Night

It might have been the whiskey, it could have been the wine....either way, our January 21st Pub Night was one for the books!

The final tally on the evening was $2,078.96!

It goes without saying, but we couldn't have done it without Sons of Sound, so thank you to Tom Martel for spearheading the event and making it one to remember!

Another great example of teamwork as each family did their part!

you want to stand around and watch the game, you might as well sit in the stands because you are not helping your team", Coach Ryan warned the girls. "We need to move our feet, get engaged, anticipate the play, react to the situation and most importantly, we need to TRY. Don't be afraid to try. I'd rather you try and fail than to never try at all. Trying means that you believe in yourself."

It was a motivated Cyclones team that hit the ice. Skates were dicing through the ice, sticks were battling for pucks, and scoring chances were being generated. Every player came to the bench short of breath. When things weren't going their way on the offensive, goalies Layla and Nella were there to shut down the Rockets. Nora DesRochers, playing with Hailey Kovacs and Olivia Freeman was challenging the Rockets whenever she could. Brooklyn Olmsted was "mucking it up", while line-mates Keira Guthrie and Keyva Beeching were finding each other for scoring chances. Liv Martel whose confidence grows every game, battled hard with Chloe Kennedy and Kaysey Hack.

The Cyclones finally snuck one puck into the net, but the refs blew a late whistle after losing sight of the puck and disallowed the goal. "That was unfortunate, but those things do happen", Coach Ryan told the disappointed Cyclones. The good news was that it was a great example of how the girls were going to the net looking for loose pucks. The Cyclones led the shot count throughout the game thanks in part to a strong defensive squad. Kaelyn Colbourne had one of her best games of the season (which subsequently led to her getting the "Hardest Working Player" football jacket after the game). Cassie, Ila, Avery, and Leah also worked hard to keep the puck in the Rockets end for long periods of time. Player call-up from U11, Quinn Keach fit right in and helped to round up the roster so the coaches could roll all the lines.

With 2 minutes left in the third, Hailey Kovacs took the lead and had a glorious opportunity to get the Cyclones on the board, but the Rockets goalie made a huge save. The Rockets regrouped and got the puck out of the zone and got a partial breakaway. Even though the Cyclones defender caught the player and was all over her, the Rocket player fired the puck over the goalie's glove and into the net. Darn it.
