

“When I talk about team building, I don’t mean that everyone has to agree, or play exactly alike, or be alike. The aim is to build a team, not clone yourself. You have to value people for their different qualities and abilities. The ultimate argument for diversity is not that it is politically correct, but that it is healthier, more interesting, and more conducive to success.”